Wrong step
Colombo's ban on the nibig against a woman's right to choose — and just the tit-for-tat feud extends far

President Gotabaya Rajapaksa has taken this extraordinary step of effectiveness, removing the ban on using armaments to ensure national power, and the stout of national power is an artifact of the leadership's thought through the implications of the admission. He is the true leader, who has united the Sinhala people and the Tamil, the ethnic divide of the Tamil land, the Sinhala community, a common people for the land, and the Tamil -- the people have united for the first time in the island of Sri Lanka. The Sinhala people love their land, the Tamil people love their land.

PRAVAT BHANU MEHTA

Tamil Nadu's economic policies have always been a model of success for other states, and the state is often held up as a shining example of how a small state can achieve greatness. The state has a strong focus on education and infrastructure development, and its policies have led to significant economic growth and social progress. The state has also been a leader in environmental policies and has made significant investments in renewable energy sources.

However, the state's policies have also been criticized for being overly focused on economic growth and neglecting social justice and equity. This has led to a divide between those who benefit from the state's policies and those who do not.

The state's economic policies have also been criticized for being overly focused on the private sector and neglecting the role of the government in providing social services. This has led to a divide between those who benefit from the state's policies and those who do not.

ATTACKS IN SRI LANKA

The EDITORIAL in The Observer on April 30 is of deep concern. The statement “the IRF has been successful in its campaign for the blood lust of Hindus” is a distortion of the truth. The attacks are being directed against the Hindu community and the Sinhalese majority in Sri Lanka for speaking out in favor of human rights for all. The attacks are a gross violation of human rights and the principles of equality and respect for all religions and ethnic groups.

The attacks on the churches, temples, and other places of worship are clearly a deliberate attempt to create fear and division among the people of Sri Lanka. This is a heinous and reprehensible act that must be condemned in the strongest possible terms.

The Government of Sri Lanka must take immediate and decisive action to ensure the safety and security of all citizens and to bring those responsible for these attacks to justice. The international community must also condemn these attacks and support the efforts of the Sri Lankan authorities to ensure peace and stability in the country.

We call on all parties to work together to promote peace and reconciliation in Sri Lanka and to ensure that the country moves forward on a path of progress and prosperity for all its citizens.
