Millenial misgony

Gunamor makes shaking gun retail

Only a passing case of moral policing has gone viral, this is the only time the gun-mad people want to rape women in short dresses. Yeh behadon mein gun se gas ke, gun se shikari, gun se maiya. It is only because the women are in western attires. The place of the incident was not a back-of- beyond, small-town scenery it was a mall in the pulsating cosmopolis, the city of lights and for the first time in decades, Gunmor. That it reveals the nasty, regressively undebatable of the city, that there are on the one hand, the gun-loving macho men of rape and abduction having been reported in recent past.

A quick glance is a must-way for the outsiders of women at public places. It is disheartening that a woman has to be on guard because she is wearing a cheap dress and is available. It is the sad state that women are deprived of creating their own destiny.

When military officers cosy up to politicians

The perilous penchant for tailoring operational missions to meet the ruling administration’s political demands has degenerated into a symbiotic, and mostly accepted, relationship between military officers and politicians. The latter use service personnel for political gain, while the former pursues career betterment and rewards previously performed.

The disastrous 1962 war with China, ridden with poor command, has created a nation—Bangladesh. Alongside, internal shenanigans in the services’ professionalism and apologetic attitude further smudged the force, further fuelling the adherence to these measures is widespread. The regulations provide sup-

The choice remains then between the criminalising and harming the war. Global trends are in the direction of the reform and restorative justice. To save the campus and its students from criminalisation, especially in cases of milder degrees of acts of sexual harassment, the investigations and trial procedures should be meaningful and change expensive and inefficient methods. The outcome of this investigation should be made dependent on the evidence.

We have to find a way to save the campuses from unnecessary criminalisation and restor-
A miscarriage of justice

The honourable Justices stand up as the conscience of the Supreme Court of India.

The Supreme Court of India is the ultimate court of law in India. It is considered the final arbiter in cases where the constitutional validity of legislation or administrative actions is at stake. The court is known for its haute couture jurisprudence, and its decisions are considered to be authoritative and binding across the country.

The Supreme Court is composed of the Chief Justice of India and up to 20 other judges, who are appointed by the President of India on the recommendation of the Supreme Court Judges Appointment Committee.

The Court operates from its seat in New Delhi, and its decisions are published in the official gazette and reported in various legal journals and newspapers. The court is known for its principled approach to the rule of law and its commitment to the protection of human rights and fundamental liberties.

In recent times, the Supreme Court has been at the center of controversy, with allegations of bias and conflicts of interest being leveled against some of its judges. The court has also been criticized for its slow decision-making process and the lack of transparency in its decision-making process.

The Supreme Court is often referred to as the "Conscience Keeper of the Constitution," as its decisions have the power to shape the course of Indian democracy and the rule of law. The court's decisions are often seen as a reflection of the values and principles that the Constitution seeks to uphold.

As the court continues to grapple with the challenges of modern India, it will be important to monitor its decisions and to hold it accountable for upholding the rule of law and the constitutional principles that it was established to protect.
The Electoral Commission must act tough

It is said that the debate now is about the Commission rather than the appealing conduct of leaders.

The Supreme Court belongs to everyone.

The independence of the judiciary rests on public trust, and public trust is not maintained by one-sided inquiries.

TUESDAY, MAY 7, 2019

The Election Commission has got away with many mistakes largely because of its credibility and people's trust in the institution. The Election Commission order has stood all the way to the Supreme Court. It has barred courts from interfering in electoral matters after the election is over. In a long chain of judgments, the SC has reiterated that the forwarding and scrutinisation of nomination forms is the arm of the Election Commission. The court has also said that the SC and the courts have no role to play at this stage.

Apart from the manner of appointment of judges, another aspect was that of accountability. The election commission has not explained what was until now the most trusted institution.

Trust deficit

Indeed, the trust deficit between the EC and the people is evident. The EC has been on the defensive in the Lok Sabha elections and the reports have revealed a crisis of credibility. Even before the announcement of results, the public, the media and the judiciary are questioning the sanctions of the EC.

The EC had said that the poll body has the final say in the matter of elections. The EC has been in the news for the last two weeks for one-sided inquiries. The EC has not even considered the role of the Election Commission member and the general public who have the right to question the EC.

The Supreme Court has ordered the EC to refrain from one-sided inquiries. The EC hasbarred courts from interfering in electoral matters after the election is over. In a long chain of judgments, the SC has reiterated that the forwarding and scrutinisation of nomination forms is the arm of the Election Commission. The court has also said that the SC and the courts have no role to play at this stage.

Further, the West's persistent attacks on the Turkish republic have contributed to the growing tension of the country's decades-old insurgent Kurdish conflict.

On April 15, a Supreme Court bench headed by the Chief Justice of India (CJI) ruled that the EC was not empowered to field a case against hate speeches and racist remarks rather than the canvassing of votes. It pointed out that the EC, as well as the media, was being used to spread misinformation and that the EC had been found guilty of spreading misinformation.

The EC has also been criticized for its handling of the election process. The EC has been accused of being biased and partisan in its decisions, and of not following the required processes. The EC has also been criticized for its handling of the election process, including the distribution of electoral rolls and the registration of voters.

Lesson from Khurda: no ‘open areas’ in a Maoist-hit landscape

VIVEK DESHPANDE

The Maoist-affected Ghatisar-Khagauli block in Santabarbara, Jharkhand, is a reminder of the daily price paid for law and order. The security forces are on high alert after a string of recent Maoist attacks on the police. On February 14, 2022, the Maoists set off an IED on a police vehicle at Ghatkas in the block, killing three policemen. A day later, on February 15, the Maoists attacked a police station in Khagauli, killing four policemen. In January, the Maoists attacked a police station in Bokaro district, killing two policemen. In December, the Maoists attacked a police station in Dhanbad district, killing two policemen.

The Ghatisar-Khagauli block is one of the most densely forested areas in Jharkhand. It is home to a large number of tribal communities, who have lived in harmony with the forest for generations. However, the Maoists have been active in the area since the early 1980s, recruiting members from the local tribes and using the forest as a safe haven. The Maoists have been engaged in a long and bitter struggle against the Indian state, seeking to establish a “People’s Republic of Jharkhand”.

The police and the security forces have been working tirelessly to maintain peace and order in the area. They have been conducting regular operations to disrupt the Maoist activities, and have been successful in preventing many of their attacks. However, the Maoists have shown no signs of giving up, and continue to pose a serious threat to the security forces and the local population.

The lesson from Khurda is clear: no ‘open areas’ in a Maoist-hit landscape. The security forces must remain vigilant and continue to work tirelessly to ensure peace and order in the area.

Purple Frog

Species being considered for Kerala state amphibian

The Purple Frog, a beautifully spotted amphibian, is to be considered for a special status in Kerala. At a recent meeting, a committee headed by the state Wildlife Advisory Board will give its approval to declare the Purple Frog as the state amphibian. Although the purple frog is widely distributed across the state, it is not considered a common sight. In recent years, there have been efforts to raise awareness about the importance of the Purple Frog and its conservation.

The Purple Frog belongs to the western Ghats, and is found in various parts of Kerala. It is known for its distinctive purple coloration, with a darker shade on its back and a lighter shade on its belly. The Purple Frog is primarily a nocturnal species, and is known to be active during the night.

The Purple Frog is an important indicator of the health of its environment, as its presence and abundance can be used to assess the overall health of the ecosystem. The Purple Frog is also a symbol of the diversity and richness of the biodiversity found in Kerala. The Purple Frog is expected to be declared as the state amphibian in the near future. The decision is expected to raise awareness about the importance of conservation and the need to protect the Purple Frog and its habitat.
