US drone accidently kills 30 Afghans

20 die in Taliban raid near hospital

Jalalabad, A US drone accidently killed at least 30 people in eastern Afghanistan on Thursday, the Taliban said, as it continued to enlarge its grip on the country.

The attack aimed at IS fighters

ISAF’s spokesman in the capital, Kabul, confirmed the drone strike, but did not share details.

Tribal elder Malik Rahat Gul, an resident of northeastern Zabul province, said the strike killed at least 30 civilians, including women and children.

The Taliban has warned that its fighters will step up attacks against the Afghanistan government and forces as a result of the US killing of 62 of its fighters in an airstrike in the country.

President Donald Trump said on Wednesday that the Taliban were making progress in Afghanistan, but that they would never win.

In a separate incident, a Taliban attack killed at least 20 people and wounded dozens in the southern province of Zabul.

There has been no let-up in attacks since the collapse of the US-Taliban peace talks in September.

US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Thursday that the US was hoping to make progress in Afghanistan, but that it would be difficult.

Pompeo also said that the US would continue to pursue cooperation with the Taliban, and that it was impossible to have a political settlement without the Taliban.

The talks were intended to end the war, which has been going on for nearly 20 years.

However, the talks have faced significant challenges, including differences over the Taliban’s role in the Afghan government, and the Taliban’s insistence on a military solution.

Amnesty International has repeatedly called for an end to the war, and has called on all parties to the conflict to engage in serious negotiations.

The US has said that it would not continue negotiations unless the Taliban agreed to a ceasefire.

Amnesty International said that it had documented numerous violations of international law by all sides in the conflict, including violations of the rights of civilians.

The group has called on all parties to the conflict to respect international humanitarian law, and to provide humanitarian access to those in need.

Bengal coal block: promise & reality

Promises and realities of the Duska-Pachami coal block

The Duska-Pachami coal block was allotted to East Bengal Coal (EBC) in 2013, but the coal has not been mined due to various reasons. The block is located in Birbhum, West Bengal, and was granted to EBC by the government of India. However, the project has encountered several challenges due to environmental concerns and legal complications.

Promises

The allotment of the Duska-Pachami coal block to EBC was initially seen as a promising development for the region. The block is expected to have a production capacity of 10 million metric tonnes per year, and it is estimated to have reserves of 3.5 billion metric tonnes. The coal would be a significant source of energy for the state, as it is expected to meet a large portion of the state's energy needs.

The project was expected to create thousands of jobs and provide a boost to the local economy. The coal would be used to generate electricity, which would be a major source of revenue for the state. The project was also expected to improve the standard of living for the local population by providing employment opportunities and improving infrastructure.

Realities

Despite the promising prospects, the project has encountered several challenges. The most significant challenge has been the environmental impact of the project. The mining of coal has a significant impact on the environment, and the Duska-Pachami coal block is located in an area that is home to several endangered species. The project has also faced opposition from local residents and environmental activists, who have voiced concerns about the impact of the project on the local ecosystem.

Another challenge has been the legal complications. The project has faced several legal hurdles, including challenges to the allotment process and environmental clearances. The project has also faced opposition from the state government, which has sought to revoke the allotment of the coal block.

The project has also faced opposition from the local population, who have voiced concerns about the impact of the project on their way of life. The project has faced opposition from farmers, who have expressed concerns about the impact of the project on their land and livelihoods.

Conclusion

Despite the promising prospects, the Duska-Pachami coal block project has faced several challenges. The project has encountered environmental, legal, and social challenges, which have hindered its progress. The project has also faced opposition from the local population, who have voiced concerns about the impact of the project on their way of life.

The future of the Duska-Pachami coal block project remains uncertain, and it is unclear whether the project will proceed or be abandoned. The project has faced several legal hurdles, including challenges to the allotment process and environmental clearances. The project has also faced opposition from the state government, which has sought to revoke the allotment of the coal block.

The local population has also voiced concerns about the impact of the project on their way of life. The project has faced opposition from farmers, who have expressed concerns about the impact of the project on their land and livelihoods.

It remains to be seen whether the project will proceed or be abandoned, and whether the local population will be able to benefit from the project.

NRC jitters travel further to Maida

MAMATA SARKAR

The impact of NRC in Assam has spread from Guwahati to Maida, a small village in Goalpara district. A list of names has been compiled and forwarded to the述职 officials for verification. The village panchayat president said that the villagers were shocked to receive the list, and they were concerned about the impact of the NRC on their lives.

The NRC was introduced in Assam in 1985 as a measure to identify illegal migrants in the state. The NRC has been a source of controversy, with many villagers being excluded from the list and losing their citizenship rights.

The NRC has been extended to other states, including Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal, and it has sparked similar concerns in those states. The government has been criticized for its hasty implementation of the NRC, and for the impact it has had on the lives of those excluded from the list.

The NRC has also been criticized for its lack of transparency and accountability. The government has been accused of targeting political opponents and minority communities, and of using the NRC as a tool to suppress dissent.

BJP despatches activists to make presence felt

Jadavpur: A Jaydevpur University student who was threatened with the help of her life.” I have never faced a situation like this. I was scared. School goal for game

Calcutta: School students with football dreams aged under 13 will now have a chance to be coached as part of an initiative to improve the quality of school football in the city.

Debanjan Sen Foundation, the organisers of Debanjan Cup—an inter-school football tournament—has decided to work at the grassroots level and scout for talent.

The foundation was formed in 2011 by Debashis and Sreemanti Sen in memory of their son Debanjan, a student of La Martiniere for Boys for whom football was life. Debanjan died in an accident when he was 21 but his parents decided to keep his dream alive.

On Friday—Debanjan’s birthday—the foundation will kick off its talent hunt with Debanjan Youth Cup, an under-13 inter-school football tournament, at DPS Newtown.

Eighteen schools will participate in the six-a-side tournament over three days. The tournament will be played in the league-cum-knockout format.

“Debanjan died in an accident when he was 21 but his parents decided to keep his dream alive. On Friday—Debanjan’s birthday—we will kick off the Debanjan Youth Cup,” said Biswajit Das, the sports in-charge of DPS Newtown.

Debanjan Cup for senior boys was started eight years ago. “We had thought that schools would use the tournament as a platform to invest in football and we would be able to spot talented players from the tournament,” Debashis Sen, the co-founder of Debanjan Sen Foundation, said. “But I noticed that although Debanjan Cup became immensely popular, there was a distinct lack in terms of progress. In most schools, there is no proper structure yet. They don’t even have 11 quality footballers. This is probably because of the absence of proper training at the grassroots level,” he said.

The U-13 tournament will be part of a long-term coaching programme. “We expect to start the coaching programme with around 100 students. We have already identified a football ground in Kasba and Alvito D’Cunha has agreed to be our chief coach,” Sen said.

The coaching programme will run throughout the year and the boys will play tournaments beside training. “Under-13 is a platform where you can still develop the boys technically, rectify their mistakes and get them ready for a bigger platform. If a boy wants to play professional football, the most crucial period is 9 to 13 years,” said Alvito, former East Bengal player.

The foundation is in talks with East Bengal club so that boys who do well in the training programme get into East Bengal’s school in future.
A recent report by the Reserve Bank of India found that despite a plethora of schemes and programmes of financial inclusion, a mere 40 per cent of small and marginal farmers have so far benefited from these, and that more than 70 per cent of the marginalized farmers are defined as these with operations of less than two hectares each. They account for around 47 per cent of the operational holdings land. Banks are encouraged to lend to these farmers through the programmes of financial inclusion. Despite that, a large number of farmers continue to fall out of the ambit of formal financial systems. The result is that many of the small and marginal farmers are, in effect, largely dependent on traditional credit arrangements. These arrangements are far from ideal. Banks tend to set interest rates that are higher than the agricultural sector's demand. The interest rates for agricultural credit operations are still very high. The small and marginal farmers are at the mercy of the banks, and often they are denied credit when they need it the most. This can be attributed to a number of factors, including the lack of collateral, the lack of proper documentation, and the lack of credit history. The small and marginal farmers are also more likely to fall into the trap of debt when they cannot repay the principal or interest, and this can lead to a vicious cycle of debt. This is a major concern, and it is important to address it in order to ensure that the small and marginal farmers can access credit on a more equal footing with the rest of the population.
The mirror keeps crazy from cracking into sides. The heart of the book-trade market. Of the second chapter pays close attention to the correlation between page numbers, printer runs, and prices, not just of Indian literature, but of books in general, which is why it is interesting to read. Need for more

For the past five years, Indian Muslim women have faced a tough battle. People have been sensitized to the need for Muslim women to break free from traditional roles and views, but they have yet to break free. The result is that women in India are still the victims of a discriminatory system, which is endemic. The problem is not just the societal discrimination and treatment of Muslim women, but also the customary treatment of the Indian Muslim woman. This is an issue that needs a deeper analysis.

Is communalism an episodic discourse or is it the political immunity under the present dispensation? The author does not answer many of the questions raised in the book. He has chosen to adopt an arrative style, which is the only way to express the author's views. In the first Ashes Test, Smith's ton at the Oval to claim his 25th Test hundred was the icing on the cake of a superb display. It was an emotional performance by the best batsman of the 21st century and one that will be remembered for years to come.

But in Lords, in the second Test, England put in a leg slip and set a barrage of bouncers to beam down Smith. That happened because Smith was getting in the line of the ball and any baahmen to keep the head position forward and the front foot engaged. So, with a lot of intensity, that's the best thing a batsman can do. That's why whenever Anderson bowled a short ball, Smith was looking to pull it but rather he deflected it, he was getting into bad positions. That's how he got the hat-trick against Australia.

Cricket petitions in SC today

Calcutta: The all-India state units of the Cricket Federation of India (CFI) received a petition on Thursday when the Supreme Court asked the state units to file replies within four weeks.

The bench of Justice AK Sikri and Justice NV Ramana was scheduled to hear the matter. This has come as a huge relief for the many state units who had been awaiting the court’s decision.

The latest advisory issued by the Supreme Court-appointed Committee of Administrators (CoA) grants an amnesty to all state units whose elections have been delayed and the latest deadline has been extended to August 28.

The CCFU has been in force for October 22. One of the key demands of this petition is that the CCFU be made applicable from September 1 this year.

The CCFU has been said to have caused a lot of disputes among the state units. The court had earlier given the state units an additional two weeks to file their replies.

He prepared very well and his intensity was always going to be difficult to keep the ball down, it’s going to come up in the air. Rafael Nadal and Roger Federer on Wednesday

Astonishingly, two players from the top of the ATP Tour, with Federer ranked #1 and Nadal ranked #2 in the world, have never tasted the glories of the Laver Cup. And though their heads have been turned by the prospect of facing off against each other, neither player is taking the other lightly.

"I'm very excited to be able to compete against the best players in the world," said Nadal, who has been on a tear, winning his last two matches in a row.

"It's going to be a great experience," agreed Federer, who has been playing some of the best tennis of his career in recent months.

Both players are looking forward to the challenge of facing each other, and are expected to put on a show for the fans.

The Laver Cup is a unique event that brings together the top players from both the ATP and WTA Tours, and is set to be an exciting event for tennis fans around the world.
